Col Donovan, at the head of the 9th with his staff, looked woll, and saluted the governor handsomely, but the pace set by the band was a little too rapid after it wheeled out, consequently the passage was not near equal to that made by the regiment on the two previous days, or that at evening parade, which followed the review. The showing, however, was good, salutes and distances were very creditable, this being particularly so in the 3d battallon. Capt Harry's company made the handsomest passage, but he had a close call with Capt Cannon's conpany from Clinton.

Capt Barry's company made the handsomest passage, but he had a close call with Capt Cannon's conpany from Clinton.

Horses and equipments leoked well, the men had the forner well in hand, and every trooper attended strictly to business.

The 5th infantry's band gave by far a better step, and as a result the passage of the regiment was better than that of the 5th. Col Whitney and his staff rendered one of the handsomest salutes ever seen on the field, which was quickly recognized by those in proximity to the saluting point by loud applause. Co A of Charlestown, which headed the regiment, made a fine appearance with a perfect alignment, and also came in for a share of the applause. SCHOOLHOUSE PLANS.

Mayor Proctor of Somerville Requeste by Aldermon to Procure Them. board of aldermen, last evening, orders were adopted requesting the mayor to procure plans for six-room schoolhouses in wards 2 and 6, and authorizing the placing of new heating, ventilating and sanitary appliances in the O. S. Knapp schoolhouse and new sanitary accom modutions in the Charles G. Popeschool house. Several weeks ago Mayor Proctor, exercising the rights which he understoo vere given him by the new charter, authorized Commissioner of Buildings F. C. Fuller to have plans prepared in his office for the proposed new wards 2 and 6 schoolhouses, Acting upon the instructions Commissioner Fuller had his assistant, Walter T. Littlefield, prepare one complete set of plans for the ward 2 schoolhouse. one complete set of plans for the ward 2 schoolhouse, Several of the aldermen have been anything but pleased with this arrangement. They are of the opinion that the architects of the city should have been invited to present plans to the mayor and board and if this plan is carried out, they contend that the city would be likely to have the benefit of botter plans, than in the case where one man alone was permitted to prepare the same.

This subject created a great deal of discussion last evening, and aldermen Warner, Smith, Pike, Kenney and Vinal were among those who vigorously opposed the idea of assistant commissioner Littlefield's making the plans. They did not think that it was good business policy and considered that it would be far better to allow competent outside architects to offer plans in competition.

ORGANIZATION EFFECTED.

Superintendents of Street Railways Hold Meeting, Pursuant to a call, several of the su-perintendents of the street railways of New England held a meeting at Young's hotel last evening for the purpose of forming a permanent organization similar to the New England railroad club, composed of steam railroad employes.

Large attendance was present representing many of the street railway com-senting many of the street railway companies.

After dinner the meeting was called to order and the New England Street Railway club formed with the following officers: President, H. E. Bradford, general manager of the roads between Worcester and South Framingham; vice president, H. L. McLain, superintendent Newton & Boston street railway: treasurer, George H. Burgess, general superintendent of the roads from Worcester Derrah of Boston; executive committee, F. G. L. Henderson, Newton, E. E. Boston, W. G. McLoon, Portsmouth, N. H., and W. D. Burritt, Palmer.

The intent of the ciub is for the purpose of exchanging various ideas pertaining to the operation of the various street railways and sociability.

LOST THEIR STRFET GOWNE

LOST THEIR STREET GOWNE. Young Women Wore Them Over Bath-

ing Suits Until They Hid Them. NEW YORK, July 18—The two young yomen who walked through the streets NEW YORK, July 18—The two young women who walked through the streets of Asbury Park yesterday wearing their dresses over their bathing suits have not recovered their gowns. They discarded their street costumes upon reaching the shore for the purpose of taking a dip, and thought they hid them safely under a payllion.

When they came from the surf they were surprised to find policeman Whittie had confiscated the gowns and turned them over to "Founder" Bradley. The young women are greatly shocked over the publicity given the incident. It has occasioned no end of talk and not a little adverse criticism on "Founder" Bradley's arbitrary action in ordering officer Whittle to seize that which did not belong to him. One of the girls has consulted a lawyer with a view to ascertaining if an action for larceny cannot be brought against Bradley and his agent, Whittle, For obvious reasons the girls decline to make their names known.

It is declared by "Founder" Bradley and officer Whittle that the garments were taken as supposedly lost articles, and as such are held in the office of one of the bathhouse groups awaiting their owners identification.

It is popularly believed here that in the failure of the women to hire a bathhouse may be found an explanation for Whittle's zeal.

Ward and Davis Play Their First Match in Donbles.

Brothers Hardy Have Come From Pacific Coast.

Fuller Plays Pluckily in His Match With Ward.

Attendance Increases as the Best Men Get Together.

MAGNOLIA, July 18-The second day of the Magnolla tennis tournament brought down the list of contestants to men; five matches were played and two were allowed to go by default. During the noon intermission a very heavy storm passed over this place, the rain flooding the courts. This caused a long delay, but once play was resumed, the matches in all events were hustled off. As a result, although play lasted into twilight, the schedule arranged for attendance was much larger than on the opening day, and both the upper peing played. Col Davis had the matches wood and McDonald. Although the former rair won 6-1, 6-2, they had to play a good gome to do it. The winners were better togother than the losers, having had some previous practice. McKittrick in particular killed very well; none of them. returned the service well. Some particularly smart volleys occurred in the second set, but Stanwood and McDonald, though playing a pretty game, were not severe enough, and for the most part stayed too far back.

Quite the best tennis of the afternoon and in fact so fur in the tournament, was seen in the Ward-Fuller match. Ward, who has been acquiring much tennis honor this season, was picked to win. He eventually did so after playing two hard sets, 6-3, 6-2. Waid played a remarkably brilliant game, and in the second set played all around his man. He used his forchand drive handsomely and his place shots down the side lines were epiendidly executed; ho also lobbed well, and his service bothered Fuller somewhat.

In the first set of this match Ward started to force from the start and simply ran away from his opponent. He placed the bail beautifully and kept his man off his stride, putting everything away from him.

Today, the form that Ward showed would have been invincible; he played good tenuis and his victory in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, was well carned. Fuller could do little with his service and was unable to put a ball beyond his reach or over him. Fuller at times played brilliantly, returning everything, but his exhibition was not so consistent as in some matches he has played. The
